Brand guidelines

Welcome

Building a solid and aspirational brand is essential to our continued success. That's why it's important that everyone who works with our brand understands how to use it effectively.

Our brand guidelines will ensure we create the right impression and communicate our brand purpose and values, distinctly and consistently.

Within the pages of these guidelines you'll find the tools, inspiration and examples to help implement our visual identity.

Our identity is designed to be flexible, allowing for imagination and variety in its expression.

Every challenge is different. These guidelines aim to guide you, without stifling your creativity.

Who we are

At Diaverum, we provide life enhancing, world-class renal care to patients with Chronic Kidney Disease.

We are one of the world's leading providers of renal care and the largest independent service provider in Europe. Our experience in renal care dates back 25 years, when our first dialysis clinic was established. We now have more than 13,000 employees, operate in more than 440 clinics and are present in more than 23 countries.

We are dedicated to enhancing the lives of renal patients, enabling them to live fulfilling lives.

Our brand manifesto

Our brand manifesto

Everyone deserves a fulfilling life.

That's why we're dedicated to enhancing the lives of renal patients.

Our standards of care ensure excellence for every one of our patients in each of our clinics worldwide.

Our care delivery system enables universal access to world-class renal care. A system continuously improved through education and scientific research.

We constantly invest in new digital technologies to improve medical outcomes, effectiveness and efficiencies. To give our people more time...

Time to provide what only people can provide...

Care, true care.

With passion and inspiration.

Empowering patients, their friends and family.
Because everyone deserves a fulfilling life.

What makes our brand

Our visual identity takes its inspiration from the ‘layers of care’ comprising our value proposition.

Just as our ‘layers of care’ combine to offer every patient a unified outcome – true care for life – layering of our core identity elements, achieves a unified visual expression of our brand.

In this section of the guidelines, we introduce the core identity elements comprising our brand and explain how to use them correctly.

Brand mark

Our brand mark is our universal signature that is present on all our communications. It should be clearly visible and legible on all communications, as outlined within these guidelines.

The brand mark is comprised of our symbol and word mark. The symbol has been rescaled, so that these two components are now perfectly aligned for both digital and print applications.

The word mark
Our lettering is unique and inspired by ancient Roman lettering.

The symbol
Our patients are the absolute core of our business, and our symbol graphically represents patient care at the heart of all we do.

Symbol

Word mark

Minimum size
The brand mark should never be reproduced at less than 25mm in print or 100 pixels on screen.

25mm

Brand mark colour

Our brand mark should be used in either Diaverum Orange or White, whenever possible. When colour is not available then the 100% Black version should be used. No other colour variations are permitted.

Diaverum Orange This is our primary brand mark and should be used, whenever possible, on pale or white coloured backgrounds or on Diaverum Green.
White This is the version to use on Diaverum Orange or on mid to dark coloured backgrounds.
100% Black This is the version to use, when colour is not available, on pale or white coloured backgrounds.

Exclusion zone

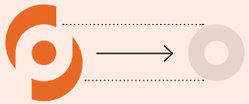

To protect the visual integrity and clarity of our brand mark, a clear space or ‘exclusion zone’ should always be applied. This area should be kept free of any other graphics, images or elements of any kind, including partner brands.

The exclusion zone is equivalent to the height of the ‘O’ from the symbol, as shown below and applied in the diagram opposite, with the tinted grey circles indicating the exclusion zone.

The same exclusion zone system and rules apply for the alternative language versions of the brand mark.

Calculating the exclusion zone
This is measured by using the circle from within our symbol.

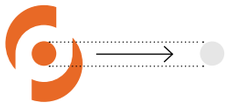

Shorthand brand mark

In some circumstances, if space is limited or for use at very small sizes, such as for social media, our shorthand brand mark may be used. It is also what we use as our favicon.

Our shorthand brand mark is the symbol from our full brand mark.

The same colour rules apply to our shorthand brand mark as to the full brand mark. The exclusion zone for the shorthand symbol is shown below and on the right.

Calculating the exclusion zone
This is measured by using the circle from within our symbol.

Service lines

For our services we have developed a naming concept where we prefix the service with a ‘d.’ d.HOLIDAY, d.CARE, d.ACADEMY.

The purpose of this naming convention is that these services, considered to be differentiators for us, should be distinguished from other services and be more visibly part of our brand identity.

Do not use this naming convention for any services other than those named on this page.

The medical services, such as the core services and the integrated services, should be written using descriptive names.

The same rules about colour and exclusion zones apply to our service line brand marks

How not to use our brand mark

To maintain consistency across all communications, please use the brand mark with careful consideration and as described in these guidelines. Our brand marks should be used from the original artwork files and must never be altered in any way.

These are some examples of what not to do with our brand mark.

Do not – alter the proportions

Do not – rearrange the elements

Do not – apply shadows

Do not – use on images that compromise the legibility

Do not – use colours other than those specified in these guidelines

Do not – place elements within the exclusion zone (see page 14 for details)

Do not – add additional elements or words other than our specified service lines

Do not – rotate the brand mark

Do not – change the typeface

Brand mark positioning

We have applied a grid to demonstrate the placement of our brand mark.

Use the primary position (position 1 demonstrated), whenever possible.

In exceptional circumstances, the brand mark may also be positioned in the places indicated.

Position 1
The top-left corner is the primary position for our brand mark

Our voice

Tone of voice is an integral part of our brand. What we say and how we say it, is a powerful tool in building trust.

We always strive to put our patients first. The way we communicate must, at all times, reflect how much we truly care – for our patients, their friends and relatives, and for each other.

This section of the guidelines will help to ensure we all know and use the same distinctive voice, whether we are talking to our patients or to each other.

Our voice

Tone of voice is a powerful tool in building trust with our patients and is a vital part of our brand. Patients get a sense of who we are and what we stand for through every interaction they have with us. Therefore, the way we communicate must always reflect our values and how much we truly care for our patients.

This section helps to ensure we all know, and use, the same distinctive voice when we're talking to our patients and to each other.

Positioning line

Our positioning line has been developed to communicate our standards of care to ensure excellence for every one of our patients, in each of our clinics worldwide.

This positioning line can be used, in the colours demonstrated, as a statement or sign-off.

Tone of voice examples

Whether it's a tweet, web article or email, our brand tone of voice has three simple principles to guide your communication, as explained here with a few examples.

1. Patient first

Our brand positioning line has been developed for a reason. 'Life enhancing renal care' puts the focus on our patients by putting their aspirations and needs first. 'Renal care that enhances life' is a similar statement but doesn't put the 'patient first'.

This principle asks you to begin your communication from the perspective of the patient, wherever possible. Acknowledge their hopes and needs as the motivation for any practical or technical information that may follow.

We do not say:

Our clinics offer the best in renal care. We're here to help improve the lives of patients suffering from CKD.

We do say:

Everyone deserves a fulfilling life. That's why we're dedicated to enhancing the lives of renal patients.

2. Warm and caring

Always bring the care we show to our patients into your communication by writing in a warm and positive way. If you follow the principle of 'people first' your writing will naturally develop empathy and show compassion.

Warm and inclusive communication is active rather than passive. Active writing reveals the person who is speaking, and uses human, everyday words. Passive writing hides the speaker and is impersonal and often overcomplicated.

We do not say:

The clinic is not open at the time you requested. Please get in touch to arrange an alternative.

We do say:

I'm sorry, we're not open at that time. Can I offer you an appointment for the following day?

3. Clear and concise

Our patients feel empowered when they feel fully informed about their treatment. But be careful not to overwhelm them. Be as concise as you can and use short sentences. One idea per sentence is a good rule. Simple language is always better than technical jargon, which tends to feel impersonal and cold. Remember, part of showing empathy is writing in a way that a patient can understand and feel reassured by.

We do not say:

Dialysis works on the principles of the diffusion of solutes and ultrafiltration of fluid across a semi-permeable membrane.

We do say:

Dialysis filters out unwanted waste products from your blood that your kidneys are not able to remove.

Writing style guide

This guide covers key rules of spelling, punctuation and grammar, to help us communicate in a clear and consistent way.

Anglicisation

Our brand uses –ise (English) rather than –ize (American) – i.e. civilised not civilized.

Abbreviations

If you do use abbreviations, always write the full name the first time followed by the abbreviation in capital letters in parentheses – i.e. Chronic Kidney Disease (CKD).

Except for common abbreviations such as e.g., i.e., vs., etc., all acronyms should be in upper case without punctuation – i.e. 'UK' not 'U.K.' and 'CKD' not 'ckd'.

Currency

Do write currency in upper case using the three letter abbreviation – i.e. EUR, USD, SAR etc.

For EUR only, you may use the € sign.

Do write the currency before the amount and have a space between – i.e. EUR 2,000.

If using the € sign, there should be no space between the sign and the amount – i.e. €2,000

Numbers in text

Do write numbers from one to nine in words within text. Use numerals from 10 onwards.

Do abbreviate thousand to 't', million to 'm' and billion to 'bn' if required. Don't leave a space between the number and abbreviation

Do:
EUR 10m
€10m

Don't:
EUR10m
EUR 10 m
10 mEUR

Numbers

Do use a comma as a separator for thousands and full-stop for decimals.

Do:
GBP 2,000.00

Don't:
GBP 2.000,00

Negative numbers are written:
-€2,000 or EUR -2,000.

Dates

Do write dates in the following order 'day, date month year'

Do write the name of the month

If abbreviating, use three letter abbreviations for months

Do ensure the date is not split at the end of a line

Don't use 'th', 'nd', or 'st' after dates.

Don't use the number of the month (the order of dates is different across the world and causes confusion/ mistakes – i.e. 02.01.2020 can mean 2 Jan or 1 Feb 2020).

Do:
Monday, 2 January 2020
2 January 2020
2 Jan 2020

Don't:
02/01/2020
2nd January 2020
02 January 2020
Jan 20
2.1.20
'20

Ampersands

Do use '&' when it is part of a proper name, eg. HM Customs & Excise.

Do use 'terms & conditions' instead of 'terms and conditions'.

A&E, R&D and Q&A are the only other widely recognised uses of ampersands.

Don't use an ampersand (&) as an abbreviation for the word 'and' at any other time.

Graphic system

We have translated the concept of layers ‘layers of care’ from our value proposition, into a visual system.

This visual system provides a systematic yet flexible approach to layering core elements of our brand. The layering approach can also be extended to the materials, finishing processes and techniques that we use.

In this section of the guidelines, we explain the principles of the visual system and demonstrate how it can be applied to create distinction and impact.

Layering

We have created a visual interpretation of the ‘layers of care’ we identify in our brand strategy.

This flexible graphic system is used to create dynamic and diverse layouts.

It is achieved by using layered blocks of colour, from our colour palette, to accommodate content and imagery.

The blocks of colour should always observe the colour ratios and proportions outlined on page 34.

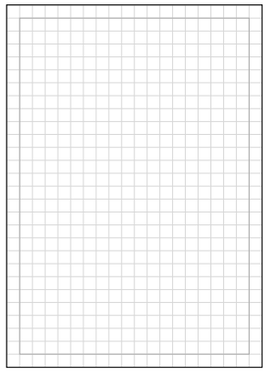

Design grid templates

We have created a grid system to guide the correct alignment, proportions and arrangement of visual elements, on a page or screen.

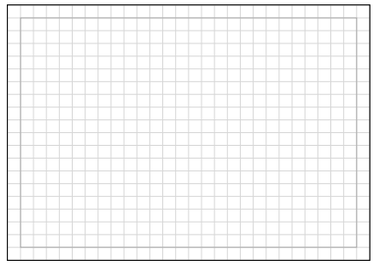

This system is flexible and allows for numerous combinations of text, image and colour blocks.

The grid system is created by dividing the shortest edge of the page into 20 equal units.

Our graphic system in use

Follow these principles for correct application of our graphic system.

Application guide

1. Select an appropriate grid or create your own following the guidance provided on page 27.
2. Add a background colour (or leave as white), photograph or illustration.
3. Use our layering system to add additional blocks of colour, photography or illustration, if required.
4. Add messaging (follow the typographic principles on pages 37 and 38), the Diaverum brand mark or symbol (for social media).

Graphic system examples

Layering materials

Our layering system does not only work as blocks of flat colour. Layering can be used in so many creative applications and to great effect, by using different materials, textures and finishes.

Colour palette

Colour is a core element of our brand. It is primary identifier, sets the tone for our business and makes us stand out from our competitors.

Our primary colours convey warmth and compassion, in their richness and intensity. While our secondary colours add contrast and emphasis.

Colour is used prominently through the application of our visual identity. This section of the guidelines provides the colour breakdowns, and explains the ratios and proportions of use.

Primary colour palette

When applying colour, always use the breakdowns and specifications provided.

Our colours have been carefully selected – do not introduce any new colours other than those specified in these guidelines.

These primary colours are to be used as the lead colours on all materials. They should feature as the most dominant colours in any communication, such as on the front cover of brochures, leaflets or digital applications.

Hex: #FFE0D0

Secondary colour palette

Our secondary colour palette has been chosen to complement our primary colour palette.

The secondary colour palette should be used with care and consideration – as the name suggests these colours should be used in a secondary capacity to accent and complement the primary palette.

Keep things simple and do not use all the colours at once. Too many colours can be distracting, jarring and confuse your overall message. The only instance where the full palette may be used together would be for colour-coding graphs and charts.

Colour usage ratios and proportions

The main colour on any piece of communication should be either Diaverum Orange, Green or Pink.

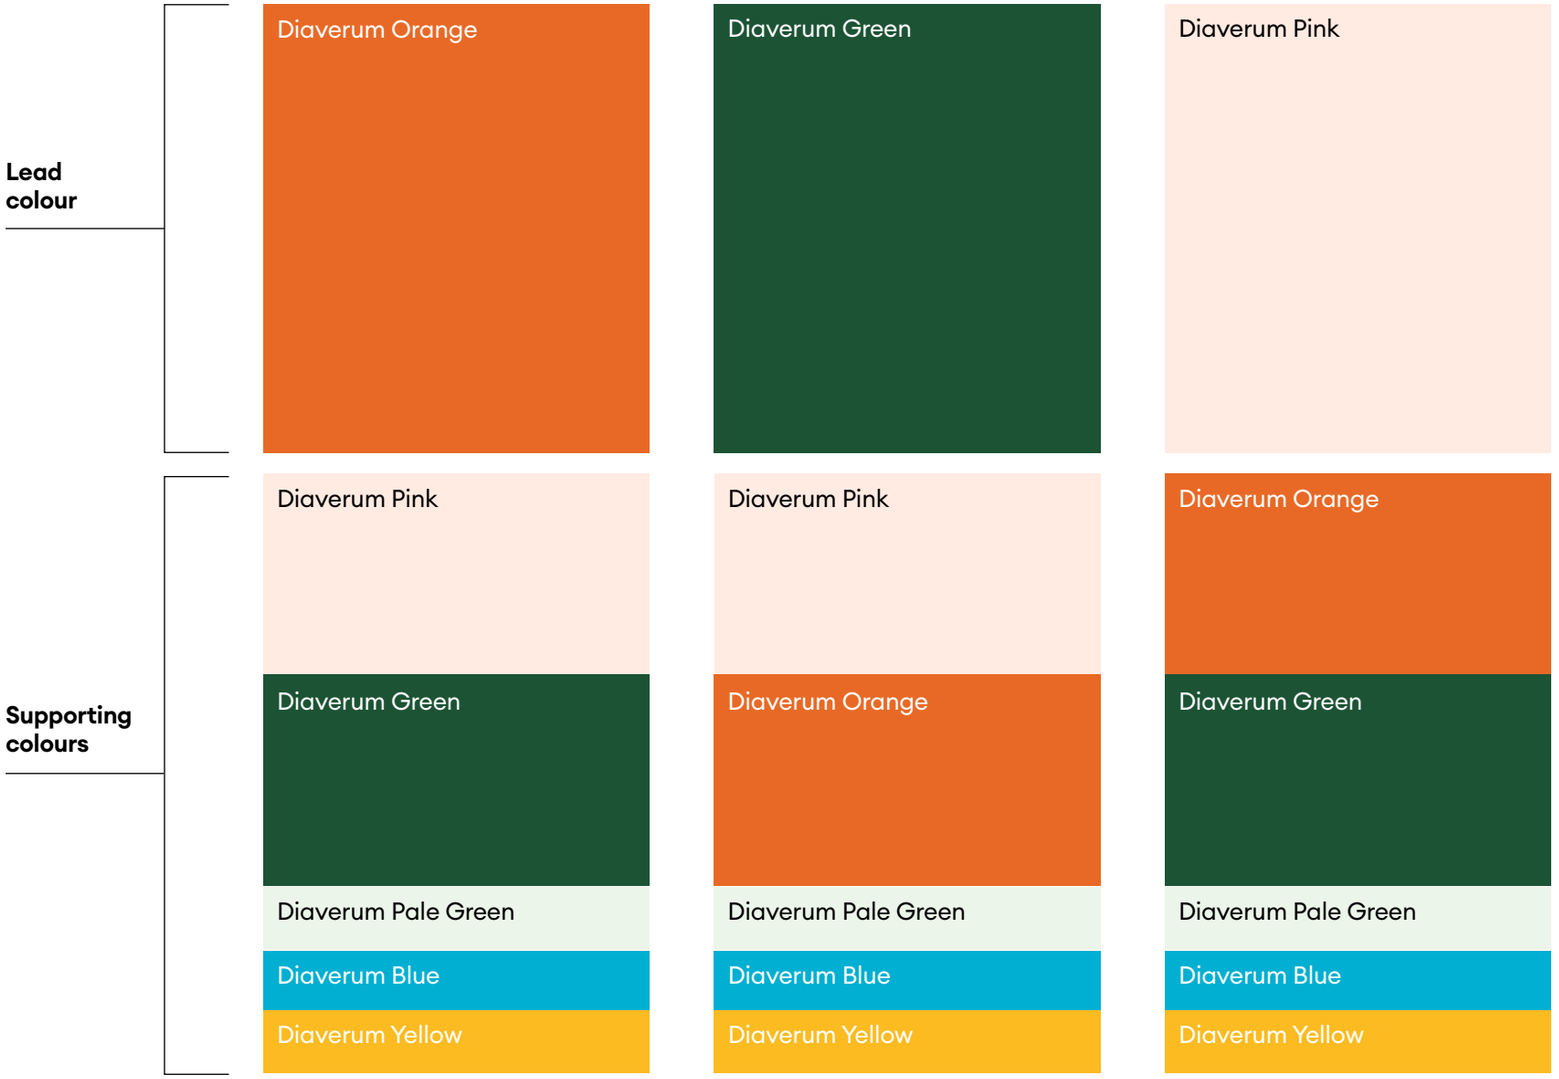

Effective use of our colour palette is not only about using the correct colour values but also about using the colours in the correct proportions.

To complement our three primary colours it may be necessary to introduce our secondary colours. But please keep things simple and aim to follow the proportion guide we have suggested on this page.

Due to their richness and intensity – Diaverum Orange and Diaverum Green should not both be used for large areas of colour equally – one should be dominant and the other complementary.

This page is intended as an indicative guide and does not illustrate every variation or possible combination.

Of course there may be times when you want to make a stronger statement and a different mix of colours might be appropriate; but this should be the exception and not the rule.

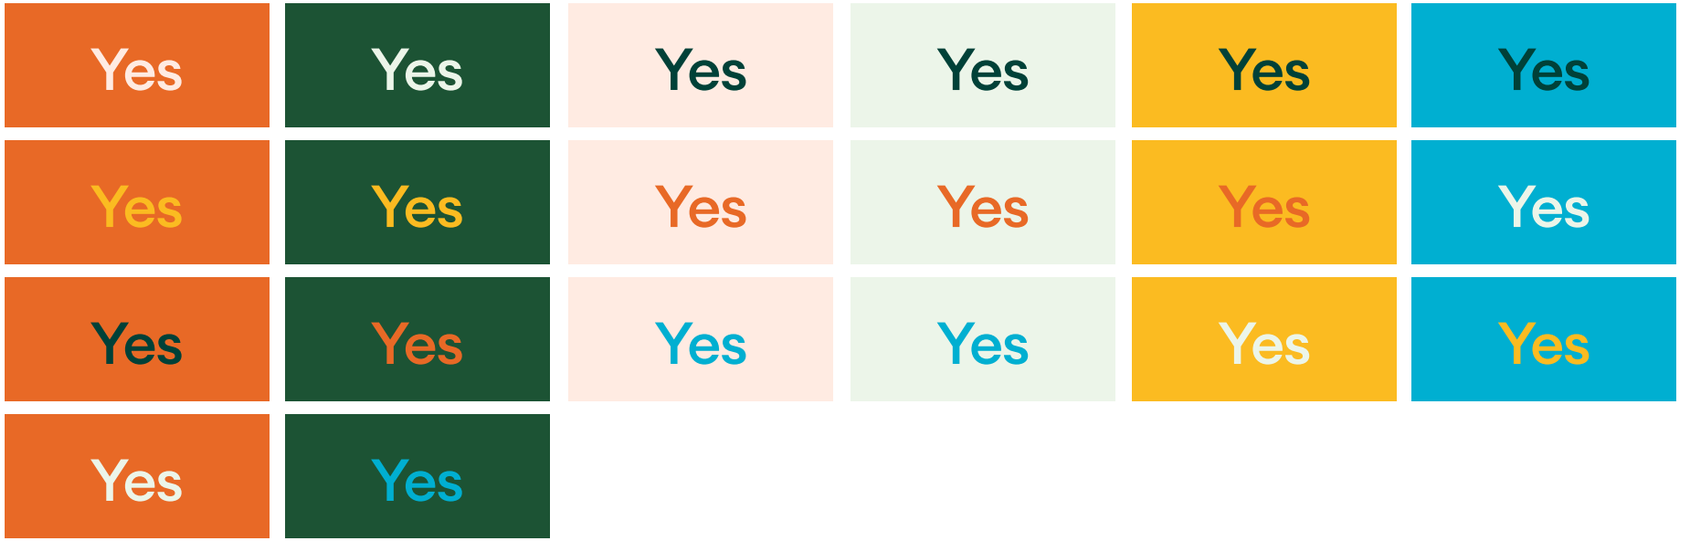

Do’s and don’ts

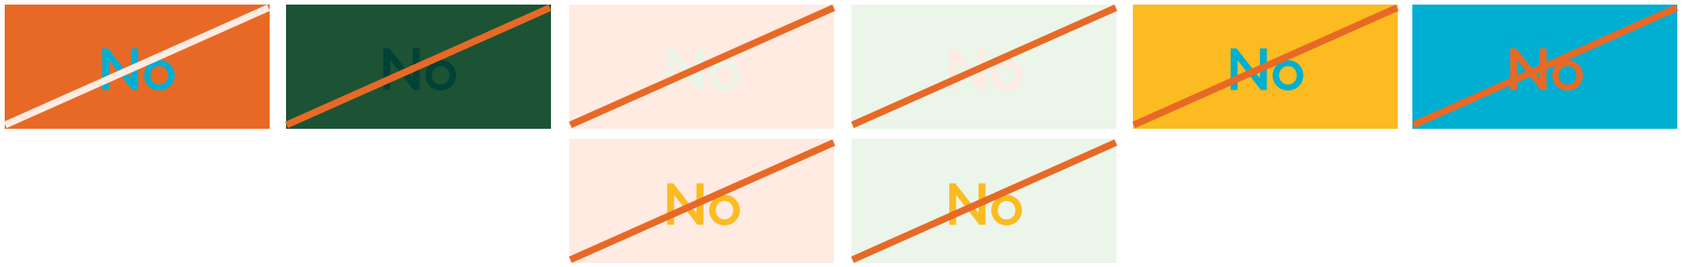

To ensure legibility, certain colour combinations should be used, while others should be avoided.

Colour legibility

Acceptable colour combinations

Colour combinations which must be avoided

Typography

Type has character and personality. When used correctly, typography will draw the readers' attention, lead them to the most important information first and maintain a sense of clarity, legibility and structure.

When used as part of our visual system, typography will add impact, distinction and help to convey messages.

Our typeface is a fundamental element of our brand. In this section of the guidelines we introduce our primary typeface, explain the principles of use and provide alternatives for exceptional circumstances.

Typography – make an impact

Our primary typeface is Euclid Circular A which is a geometric, contemporary font. It can be used for all communications to ensure consistency across the business.

Typography in use

Our typography style is, in most instances, ranged left. This provides the eye with a constant starting point for each line, making text easier to read.

When setting ranged left typography, it's important to balance the ragged edge of the text, as effectively as possible. This improves the legibility and neatness of each block of text.

Languages read from right to left should apply the same principles, but ranged right.

Our leading is set tighter than the default setting – please adjust this manually.

The main weights to use are Semibold for headings and Light for body copy.

Text should be typeset in sentence case. Never set sentences in all capitals.

Usage guide

1. Main headings and titles should be set in Euclid Circular A Semibold
2. Standfirsts, intros and secondary information should be set in Euclid Circular A Light
3. Text headings should be set in Euclid Circular A Semibold
4. Body text should be set in Euclid Circular A Light

Font alternatives

Our brand font Euclid Circular A must always be used. If that is not possible, due to the availability of certain alphabets, please use these alternative fonts.

Only use these alternative fonts when our brand font is not available or cannot be used, for example: PowerPoint presentations where external input is required; Cyrillic, Slavic, Arabic or Mandarin alphabets.

For system fonts, Cyrillic, Slavic please use Segoe UI, which is a Microsoft font and is available as a free download here: https://docs.microsoft.com/en-us/typography/font-list/segoe-ui

For Arabic please use Atrissi Sans, which is available from the contact on the back page of this document.

For Simplified Mandarin please use Noto Sans CJK, which is available as a Google font and is available and can be downloaded for free here: https://www.google.com/get/noto/help/cjk/

For all these alternative fonts, please observe the hierarchy of weights shown on the previous page.

Photography

Photography is one of the most powerful elements of our visual identity.

People are at the heart of our images. Authentic, poignant and inspiring imagery not only reveals, but enhances the true essence of our brand.

Our photography will resonate with our patients on so many levels. As such, images should be selected with integrity and used thoughtfully.

Please always refer to this section of the guidelines when selecting or commissioning photography.

Photography themes

Packed with emotion, our brand essence elevates our purpose and gives us three themes that will help you identify impactful imagery.

Illustration

The core messages from our brand manifesto provided the inspiration for our unique and inspired set of illustrations.

Illustration provides us with the opportunity to convey ‘true care for life’ with a creativity, warmth and compassion.

Our bespoke illustrations are unique to us and can be used to enhance and support communications. They can also achieve great visual impact when used within clinic environments, social media and advertising.

Illustration

Our illustrations are driven by inspirational messaging identified within our manifesto and uses colours from our brand colour palette to create a unique and authentic illustration set.

We have 10 illustration themes which support our manifesto, five are shown on this page with the additional illustrations shown on page 49.

Illustration themes

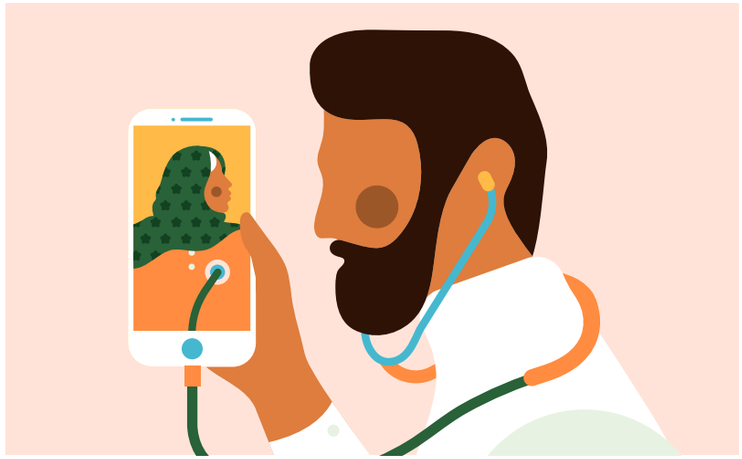

- Fulfilling lives
- Enhancing lives
- World class care
- Innovative research
- Advanced technology
- Life enhancing renal care
- Passion and inspiration
- Empowering patients
- Improved medical outcomes
- Care, true care

Illustration in use

Illustrations should be used whenever we talk about the Company at a brand level and can be used in a variety of print, digital, film and interior projects.

Globally the illustrations can be used to enhance and support communications across a variety of cultures and languages.

Iconography

Icons are used to communicate messages quickly, create visual interest and help draw the reader to key information.

We have created a suite of 14 primary icons to be used, as described, in this section of the guidelines. An icon construction guide, which explains the design principles and how to apply them, as also been provided.

Iconography

Icon suite

Icons should be simple and clear, and used as an aid to communication. They can be used to help break up areas of dense text or information, to make complex ideas easier to digest, or as buttons on digital applications.

Icons should never be used as a replacement for photography or illustration – they must always be used to support information and not to lead it.

This page shows a selection of icons to be used. They are available in two colours (the primary version) or white only.

PowerPoint templates

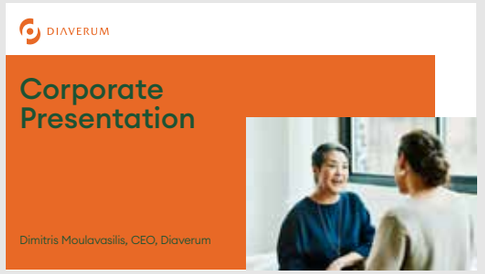

PowerPoint templates are available for use in the creation of presentations.

When creating slides please ensure you follow all our rules for typography and layering. Our primary colour palette should be the dominant colours throughout any presentation and our secondary palette should be used only for highlights, the colour-coding of charts and tables, and for impactful quote slides.

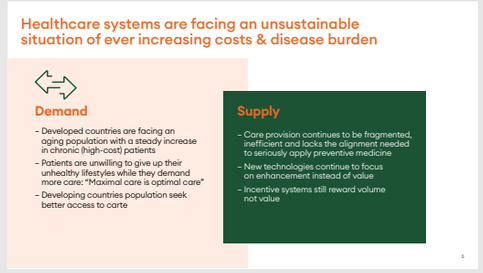

Please use a consistent approach in your selection of cover slides, divider slides and end slides, as well as your colour choices throughout, so that the presentation has a consistent look and feel.

Please use the contact details on the back page of this document to obtain our template files.

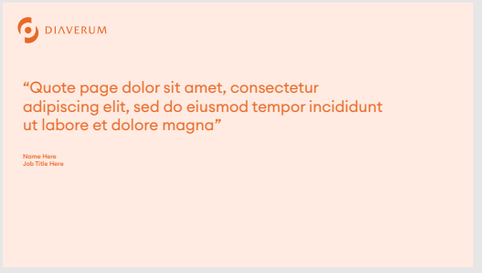

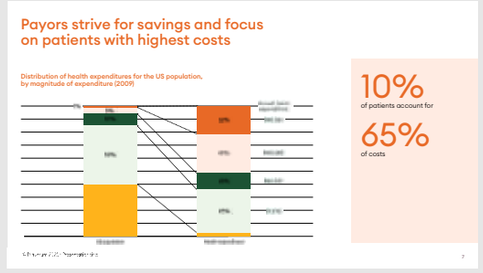

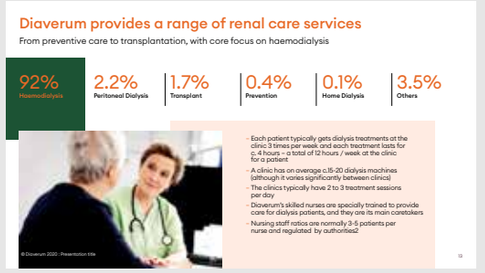

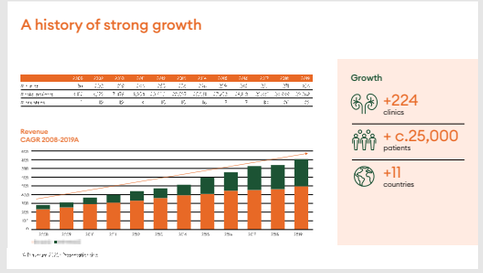

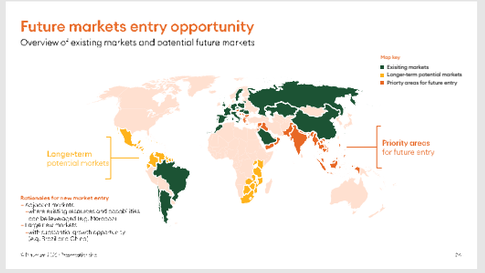

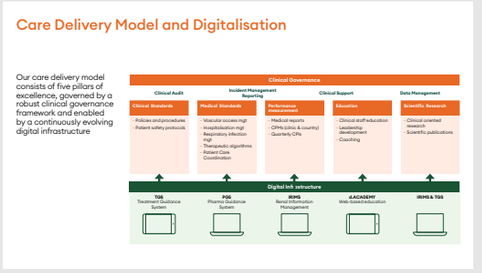

Design applications

The following pages show examples of the brand identity in use. Please follow the design and style shown in these examples, and adhere to the rules outlined in these guidelines, when creating new communications.

Brochure covers

Examples of brochure front covers using our flexible layering system, which allows for a variety of approaches.

For consistency of colour, large areas of colour should be printed using the Pantone references provided on pages 32 and 33.

For digital printing, please refer to the CMYK colour breakdowns on pages 32 and 33.

Brochure spreads

Examples of brochure spreads, which combine our layering system, bold typography, photography and illustration.

Internal pages make use of our secondary colour palette to create varied and interesting page layouts.

Annual reports

Example of an annual report front cover using our flexible layering system, which allows for a variety of approaches.

For consistency of colour, large areas of colour should be printed using the Pantone references provided on pages 32 and 34.

For digital printing, please refer to the CMYK colour breakdowns on pages 32 and 34.

Recruitment advertising

Example of a recruitment advertisement featuring one of our illustrations.

Pop-up banners

Examples of pop-up banners using our flexible layering system and photography.

If several banners are used as a set, please vary the use of the primary colour palette applied.

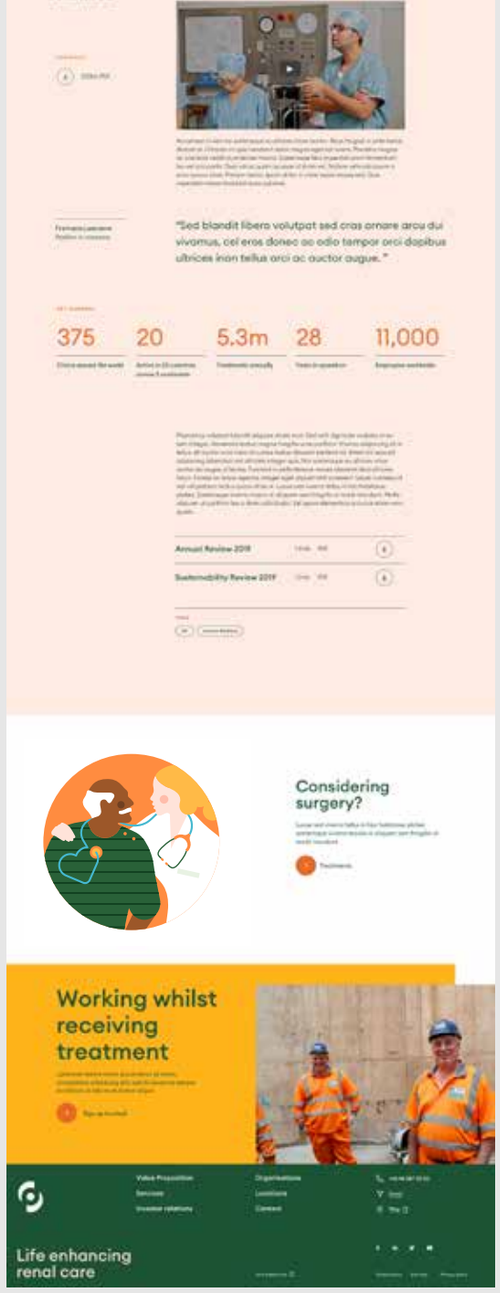

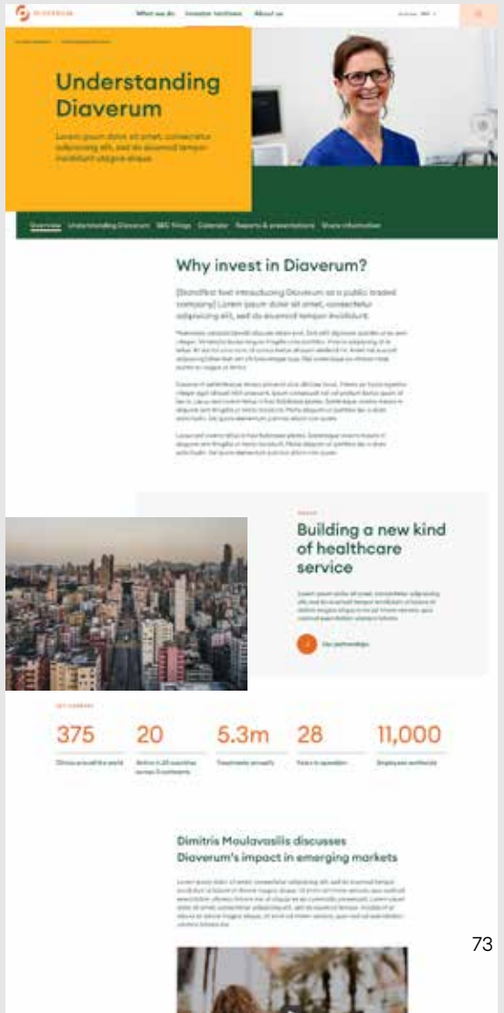

Applications

Website

Our website pages are vibrant but sophisticated, communicating an open personality and our ability to tailor our service around the needs of our patients.

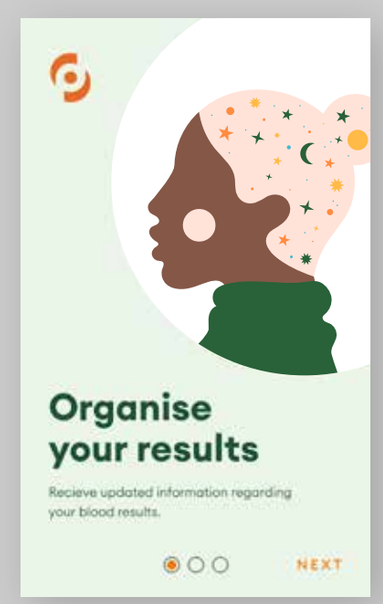

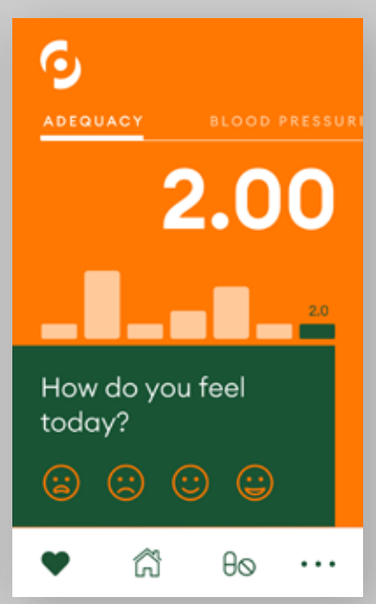

Applications

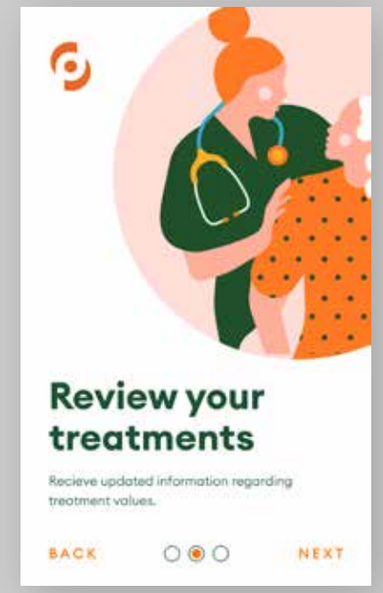

Apps

Examples of app designs using illustrations for title pages, and simple, clear infographics and iconography to communicate data and statistics.

Newsletter

Example of newsletter using our flexible layering system and photography, which allows for a variety of approaches.

Applications

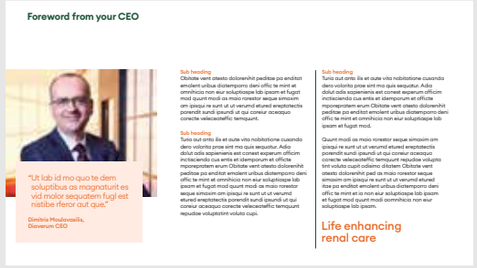

Newsletter

Examples of newsletter pages, which combine our layering system, bold typography, photography and illustration.

Please follow our rules for typograhy and create a suitable typographical hierarchy, which will clearly identify headings, introductory copy and pull-outs.

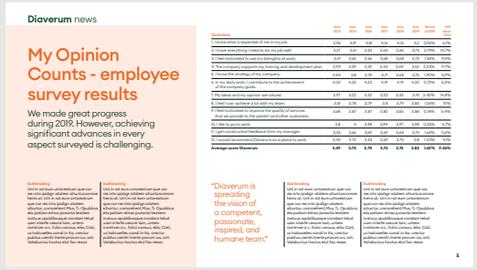

Our primary colour palette should be used throughout. Secondary colours can be used for highlights, tables and charts.

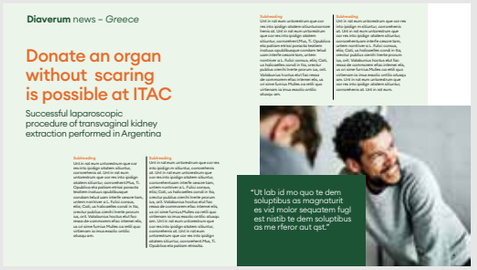

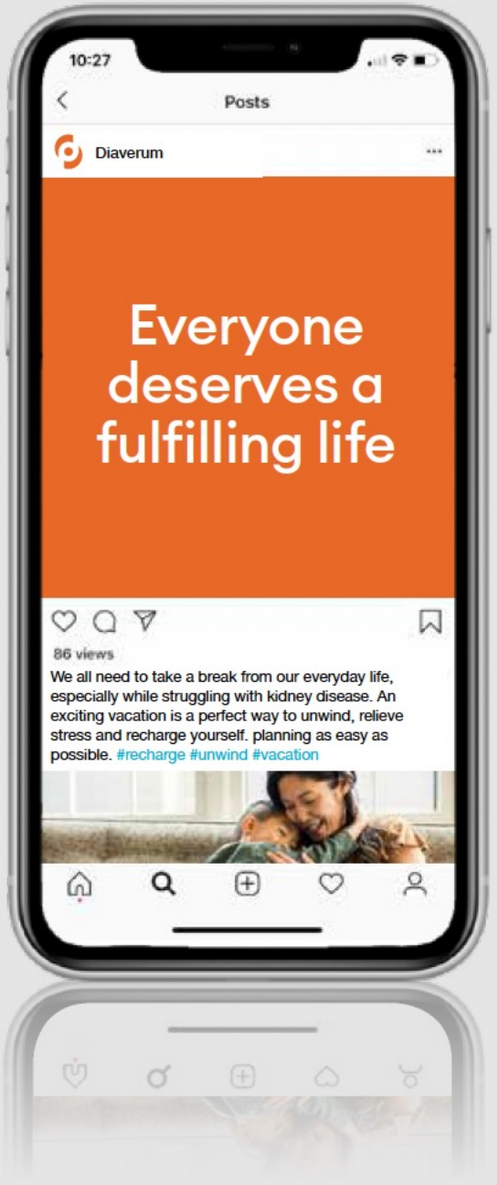

Social media posts

Social media posts should be created in landscape format for Facebook, LinkedIn and Twitter and square format for Instagram .

Please use our grid system on page 27, when constructing these posts, to ensure the correct proportions, alignment and arrangement of elements.

Copy should follow our tone of voice guidelines on pages 22 to 24, and include relevant hashtags and URLs.

Please include diaverum logo, shorthand or full size, on all posts.

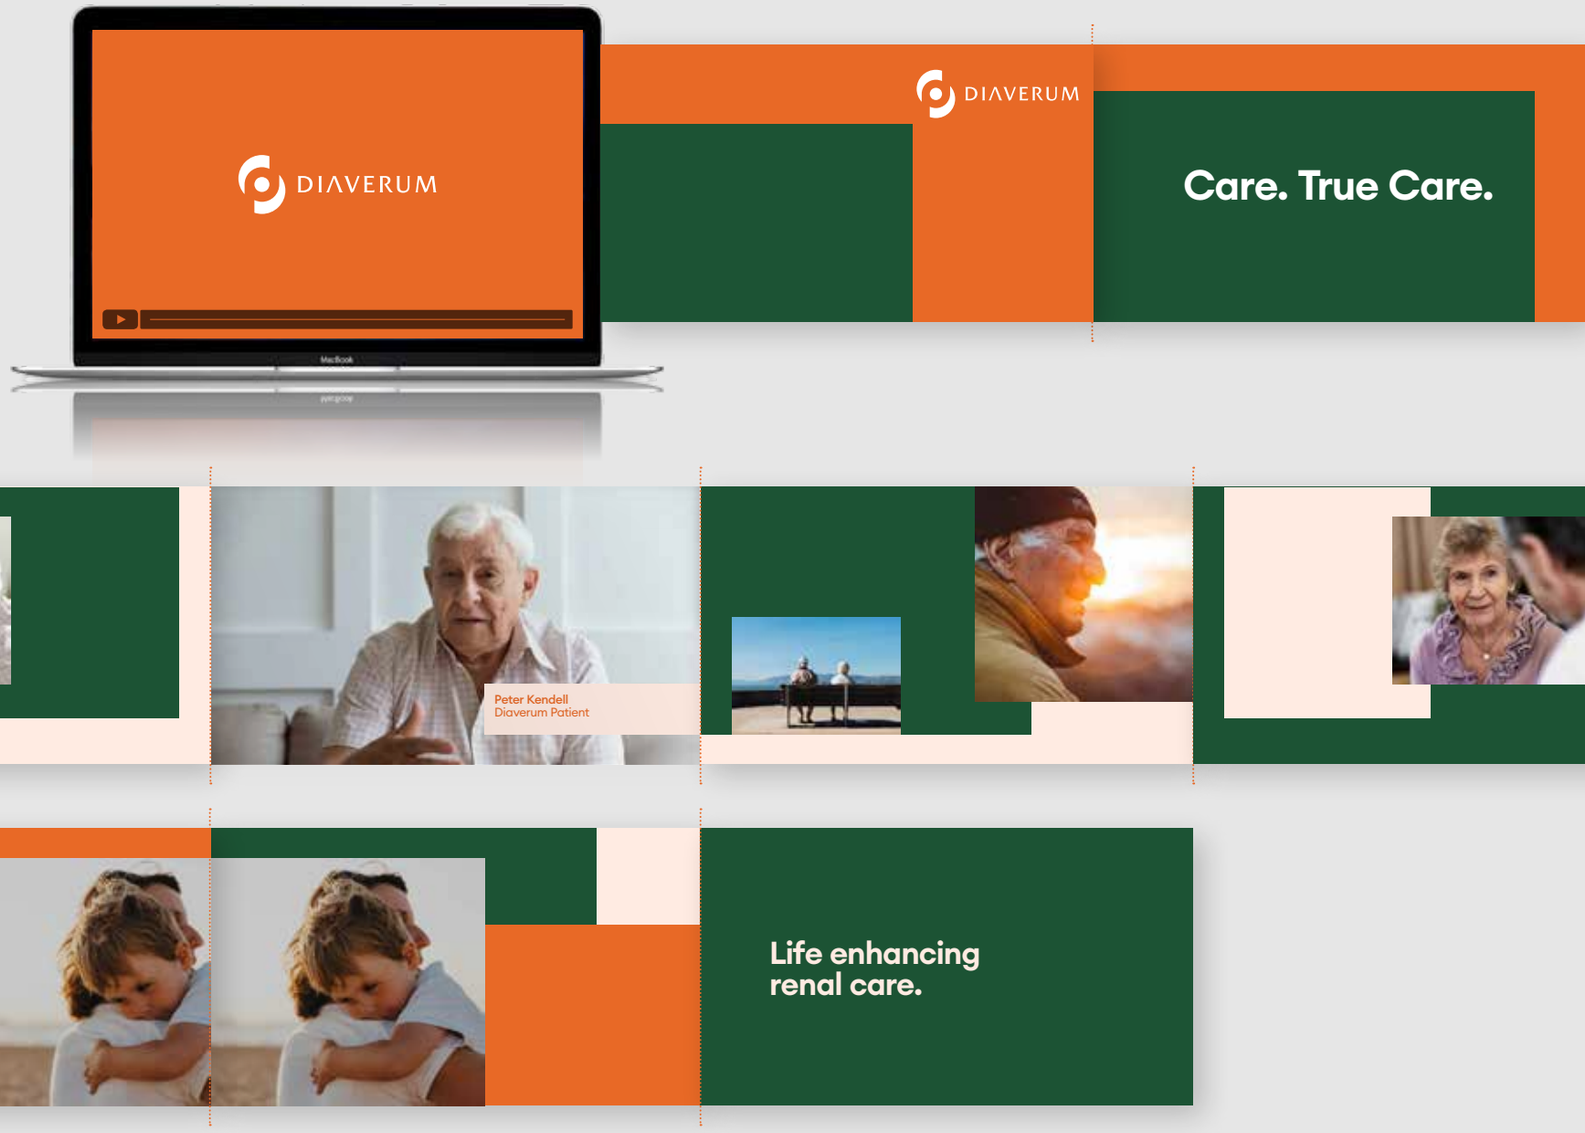

Applications

Video

Examples of a video, shown as static style frames.

Our videos are realistic, vibrant and engaging and always focus on positive patient experiences.

We encourage the use of our layering system to create movement and engaging story transitions.

Exterior signage

Example of exterior signage using the Diaverum brand mark.

We recommend that signage is vacuum formed in coloured acrylic, inset into an aluminium channel section, internally illuminated and surface mounted onto a plain coloured surface.

Specifications and size will be agreed with signage manufacturer.

When choosing colour for environments please use RAL colour system as a guide, matching as close to our brand colours as possible.

Interior Design Guidelines

Reception environment

An indicative example of a reception environment.

The colour scheme is neutral and calming. Wood panels create warmth and embrace our Scandinavian heritage.

When choosing colour for environments please use RAL colour system as a guide, matching as close to our brand colours as possible.

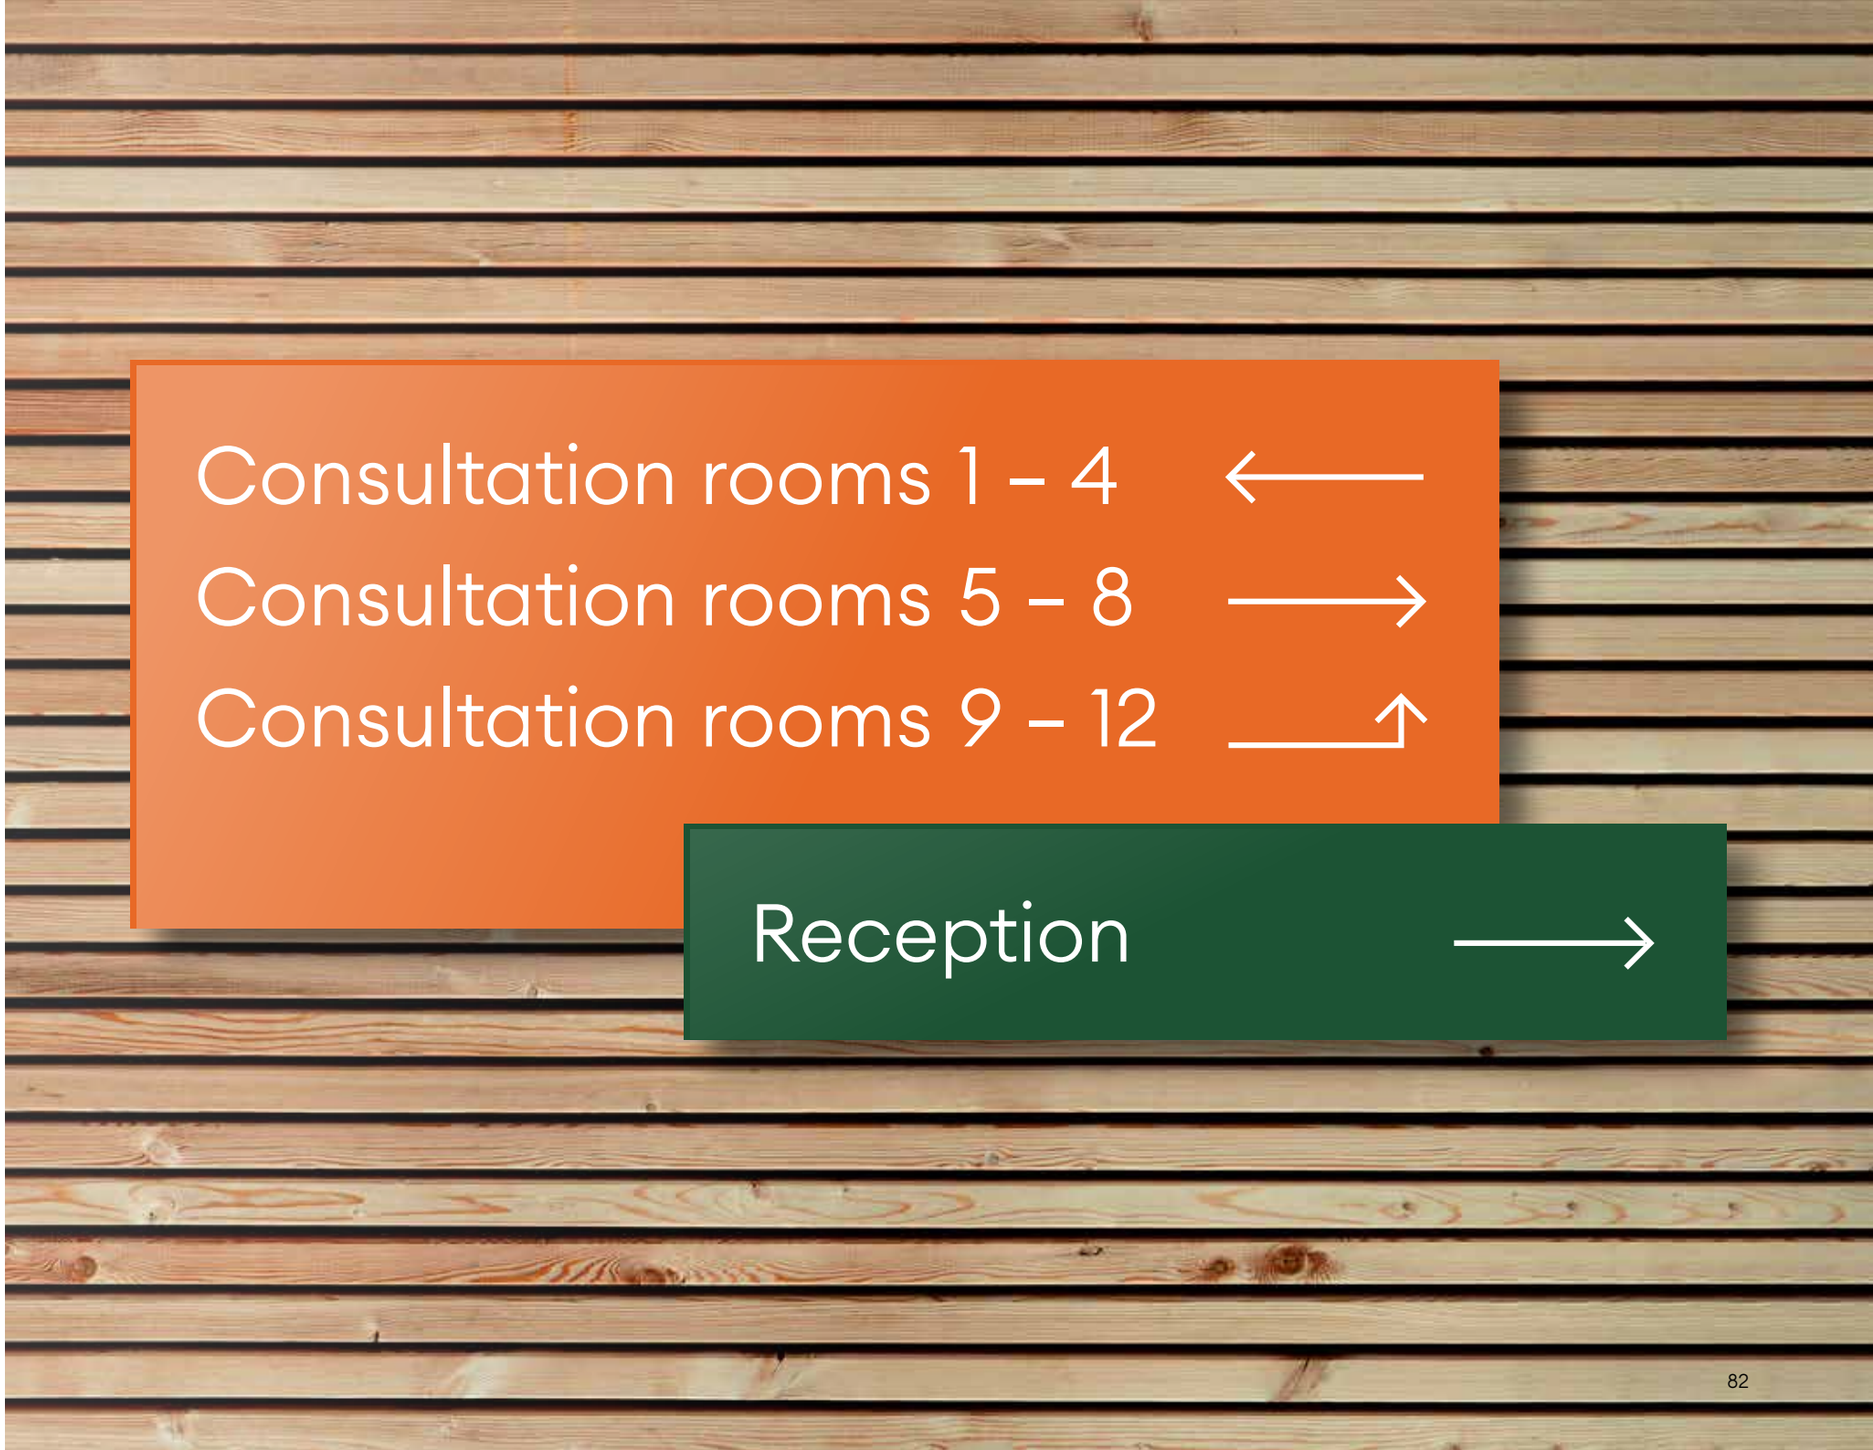

Directional signage

An indicative example of internal directional signage.

We recommend using coloured acrylic, which is either screen printed or has vinyl stickers applied, and is surface mounted to walls.

When choosing colour for environments please use RAL colour system as a guide, matching as close to our brand colours as possible.

Internal graphics

An indicative example of internal wall graphics and vinyl stickers.

When choosing colour for environments please use RAL colour system as a guide, matching as close to our brand colours as possible.

Clinic posters

Example of an internal poster.

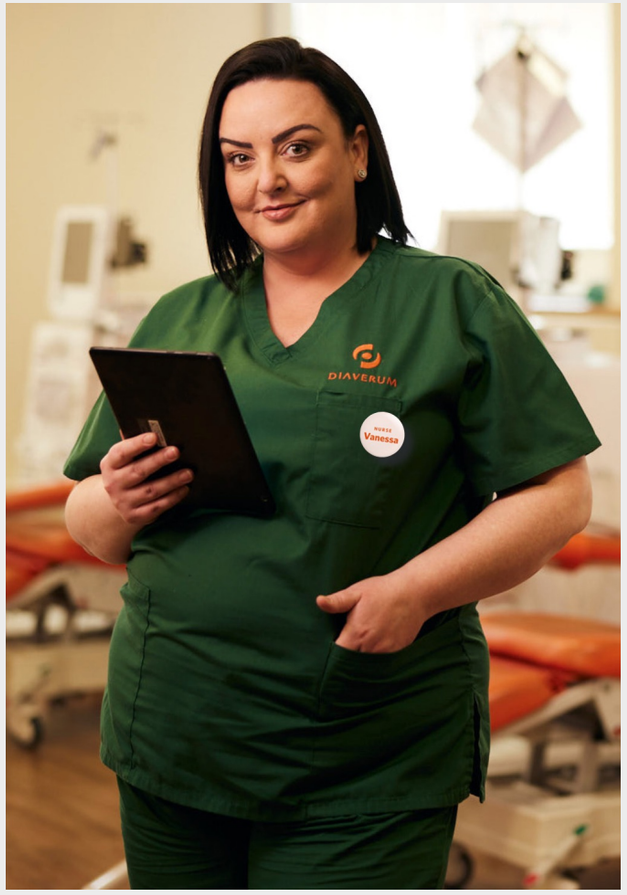

Applications

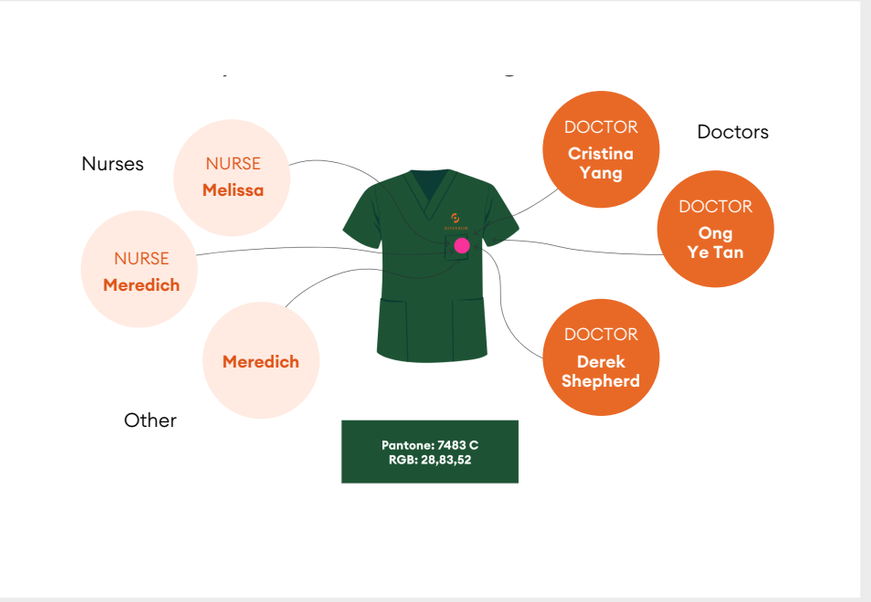

Staff uniforms

Uniforms should have our brand mark embroidered in Diaverum Orange.
Staff names on the name badges are typeset in Euclid Circular A Semibold. Job titles are set in Euclid Circular A Light.

This is a temporary solution as soon we will lunch global guidelines for all staff members.

ID badges

Examples of ID badges.
If possible, the lanyard fabric should be Diaverum Orange.

Promotional materials

Example of a tote bag.

Promotional materials

A selection of promotional materials showcasing a combination of our brand mark, brand messaging, layering system and illustration.

Recommended paper stocks

We have three paper recommendations which will bring consistency to all of our printed communications.

Uncoated paper will be a more suitable solution for high-quality litho printed communications. Digital-ready paper will be the best solution for digital print runs.

When working in print, please consider how our layering system can be used to enhance printed materials. Our layering system does not only work as blocks of flat colour, but can also be achieved by using a range of different materials, textures, stocks, paper sizes and finishes.

Uncoated paper
For premium brochures and stationery we recommend the use of a high-quality bright white uncoated stock with a tactile surface, such as Colorplan White Frost from GF Smith. Colorplan is available in weights from 120gsm to 350gsm.

Coated paper
A bright white coated silk stock is suitable for printed items such as leaflets, posters, etc. One example is GallerieArt Silk, which is available in weights from 90gsm to 450gsm.

Digital printing
For short run digital printing we would suggest an uncoated digital-ready stock such as Arcoprint from Fedrigoni, which is available in weights from 90gsm to 400gsm.
